

Niche Engineering And Economic Consultancy Prospers In The Global Marketplace

Historically the UK has been a significant force in global engineering consultancy by virtue of its industrial heritage and significant manufacturing base.

The major challenge for the future is to maintain the UK engineering consultancies global ranking, in the light of the contraction in our manufacturing capabilities over the last 25 years and the reduction of the intake into the engineering profession.

There will inevitably be growth in knowledge bases in those countries to which manufacturing is now being transferred and the consequent development of engineering consultancies.

There is evidence that the way to defend the UK's global position in engineering consultancy is to provide a quality of service and speed of response which reflects our national education and character.

Manderstam International Group was established in 1941 and has continued to provide independent bespoke engineering and economic development services worldwide. Manderstam have provided process and industrial engineering in specialised technologies in over 90 countries.

The importance of small and nimble organisations being able to cater to customer specific needs has never been more important in a marketplace dominated by "global majors" who have neither the specialised technical expertise nor speed of reaction to satisfy many small and medium-sized enterprises.

Whilst the old order of consulting engineers has changed and many of the medium-sized consultancies have amalgamated or disappeared, there are many companies like Manderstam who prosper by virtue of reputation, quality of work, flexibility and speed of reaction.

Since 1999 Manderstam have provided techno-economic consultancy services to Muger Cement, Ethiopia

Manderstam's expertise lies in oil and gas, petrochemicals, salt based industries, fertilisers, cement, vegetable oils, cotton, food processing, pulp and paper.

Manderstam have a significant track record in providing expert witness services and are approved by the UK Law Society.
